

Name(s):	Henri
Age:	4 years old
Size (weight):	19 lbs
Coat & Colour:	Shorthair, red with black markings
Primary Breed:	Dachshund	Secondary Breed	Mixed Breed
Temperament:	Happy, friendly, energetic
Good with Dogs:	No
Good with Cats:	Previously lived with cat
Good with Kids:	Dog savvy kids
Needs another Dog:	No	Needs to be an only Dog:	Yes
Housetraining:	Yes, when kept on a schedule. No pee pads used in foster care. No marking inside home.
Crate Trained:	Yes
Suitable for an Apartment:	No. Barks at noises. Cries and howls when left alone.
Origin:	Shelter		Adoption Fee:	$500

And now a few words from me:

Hello, bonjour! My name is Henri, as in "On Ree". Yes, I'm French Canadian but I respond to both pronunciations. I'm a very handsome, distinguished gentleman, so all the ladies tell me. I think it's my salt and pepper beard. However, don't let my gentlemanly looks deceive you. While I'm very friendly with everyone I meet, I get so excited that I jump up to say hello. My foster pawrents are working on my manners when greeting people. If you ignore me until I calm down, then I won't pee with excitement. I love both my foster pawrents, but I get very anxious when they leave the room, especially with my foster dad because I'm a bit of a man's man. I need my future family to be home more often than not, but they will also need to be willing to keep working with me to so that I can learn to be alone sometimes too. I love my crate, so I think I can get there eventually; you will just need to be patient with me. I love going for walks, but my leash manners are also a work in progress. Walks are good for me to help me expend some of my youthful energy... I have lots of it. I like having a backyard and will be happy to keep all the small critters in line. You should also know that I have a very loud bark, and I bark at all the noises. I also love to play with the ball; I will fetch it, but I may not bring it back because I like to play with it once I have it. I'm affectionate, and although I don't need lots of cuddles, I'm sure I could get used to them. I'm excited about finding my new furever home, as I have moved around a bit. If you think we might be a good fit, let's meet.

And now a few words from my foster family:

Henry is a beautiful, happy fellow, and his tail is always wagging. He is a very energetic, sweet, loving, and curious boy who prefers to be close to his humans. If exercised he is generally a pretty calm-natured boy, unless the Dachshund "zoomies" kick in. Henri is very noise-reactive and vocal; he would do better in a calmer home. He gets over stimulated in public settings or if there are too many visitors at one time. Henri isn't a big foodie, however if someone drops food of any kind, the two-second rule applies. He likes to be close to his humans when they eat, and after a few consistent "Henri on your bed" directions, he gives up and will lay down and chill. He sleeps like an angel in his closed crate at night. He needs his first morning pee as soon as he wakes up. Aside from that, he will let you know when he wants to go out by sitting beside the door (once he knows his surroundings). He likes to go outside for pee breaks every 3-4 hours. Henri travels well in the car and would move around if not secured safely. Also, a firm grip is needed when exiting the car; he is very strong and will try and jump out of your arms. Henri will need a patient family that will provide him with consistency and structure. They will need to continue to focus on his leash training, teaching him to not jump on people upon greeting them, and his separation anxiety. He is a very smart boy and eager to learn; with treat rewards he can be very focused on his task. He does very well with consistency. He will no doubt be a beautiful addition and will thrive with the right family. We have loved having Henri with us. There will be a MANDATORY meet and in St.Catharines.